Officially certified copies: Standards for official certification

Certificates and Transcripts of Records must be submitted in officially certified copies for the purposes of admission and enrollment. These must meet the following standards:

- Copies are only accepted as certified when they carry the original official stamp or embossed seal and original signature of the certifying person.
- Officially certified copies consisting of multiple pages must clearly show that every page has been officially certified in the same process. This can be ensured in the following ways:
  - i. the original signature of the certifying person
  - Using the official stamp: The official stamp must be visible on all pages. To achieve this, the person who certifies the copy attaches the pages to each other in a staggered arrangement and then stamps them with the official stamp. This results in every page carrying a part of the official stamp. With this method, the certification declaration and signature need to be applied to only one page.

 Using a ribbon and an embossed seal: If a notary attests the copy using a ribbon and an embossed seal, the certification declaration and signature also need to be applied to only one page.

Where can I have my documents certified?

Outside of Germany, the following institutions may carry out official certifications:

- the issuing schools or universities,
- the Ministry of Education in your country of origin,
- German embassies and consulates,
- the department of cultural affairs of the embassy of the country in which the certificate was issued,
- public authorities and notaries which are authorized to supply official certifications in your country of origin.

• If applicable for the country issuing your certificates and certified copies, please request the apostille.

Source: uniassist, adapted for the BSA.

Copies, or printed versions of uploaded copies of certified documents are not considered certified and cannot be accepted.

In Germany, any public institution ("öffentliche Stelle") which has an official stamp ("Dienstsiegel") is authorized to certify documents. This includes:

- town halls / citizen centres,
- Ortsbürgermeister" (local mayors),
- "Kreisverwaltungen" (local governments),
- parish offices,
- courts,
- notaries.

Note: Public institutions in Germany can certify documents in a foreign language but are under no obligation to do so. If you cannot find a public institution in Germany that will certify your documents, please contact the embassy of your country of origin or a notary.

Sworn or Certified Translations

We accept certified translations from the following sources:

- persons or institutions authorized to make translations under oath or admissible in court (sworn translations),
- a department of the issuing school or university authorized to issue such translations.

Translations of this kind of task are done and certified by sworn translators resident in Germany or in the country of the translation and registered at the district court.

We do not accept non-certified translations from standard translation agencies.

If you do not wish to hand in the original translations, we would also accept certified copies of translations. Please bear in mind that translators may put their original stamp on certified copies of translations made by themselves. However, they may not certify documents in the original language (see point above).
