

The Barenboim-Said Akademie gGmbH is welcoming applications for a position as Student Assistant in the Musicology and Music Theory Program (40h/month).
Start date: 4 October 2021.

Established in 2016, the Barenboim-Said Akademie (BSA) is a private, state-accredited, music academy in Berlin, training classical musicians predominantly from the Middle East and North Africa toward a Bachelor of Music degree (B.Mus.) with a required Humanities and Musicology component. Furthering a vision of musicians as reflective artists and engaged global citizens, our curriculum spans the four years of the B.Mus. program and is designed both to provide a foundation in the liberal arts and to encourage critical, informed, and creative participation in the cultural arena. It comprises core required classes in Musicology, Music Theory, Philosophy, History, Literature, Art History, and Global Issues, as well as a variety of elective courses and language and writing components. The language of instruction is English.

Primary responsibilities:

- Administrative support for the Musicology and Music Theory Program
- Assistance with Musicology and Music Theory courses and examinations
- Editing texts, compiling readers

Requirements:

- Full-time student status at a German university
- Excellent English skills, fluent German is beneficial
- Proficiency in Microsoft Office and Adobe Pro
- Technical facility with standard audiovisual equipment and programs, including online streaming platforms, allowing the assistant to solve quickly any problems both during class time and outside
- Strong organizational, communication, and time-management skills

The position is limited to the winter semester, with the option of extension. Compensation is EUR 12,68 per hour in accordance with § 7 (1) TV-Stud III. We especially encourage applications from people of diverse backgrounds.
